Established in 2005, the AACY is the first and only organization in the United States that reaches out to the young caregivers of ill, elderly or disabled family members.

Our organization assists children who are caregivers of a relative, to restore their role as children and help them succeed academically, psychologically, developmentally and socially.

At AACY, we build a bridge between the systems of healthcare, education, and community to help these children in school, out of school, and at home so they can have the skills and support they need, as well as a space to socialize with peers and succeed in life.

Do you know a caregiving youth?
If you know a young person who is caring for a family member, encourage him or her to contact us at:

LOCAL Impacts

Through the generosity of our volunteers, contributors, partners and community, AACY provides children with the educational tools they need to succeed such as access to computers, internet and school supplies.

Caregiving youth also have time to be kids by enjoying sponsored activities and camp.

WHAT We Do...

♥ Provide youth caregivers with skills-building and stress management groups.

♥ Tutoring & workshops to help develop personal goals, and assistance with college and scholarship applications.

♥ Provide links to community resource partners to help strengthen families with needed services.

I know I'm not alone and there are other people my age with the same problems.”
Bonnie - Age 12

“I am able to maintain focus in school. The in school meetings really help.”
Nathan - Age 16

“I know how to express myself in a time of need.”
Ana - Age 13

“My grades have shot up”
Jerry - Age 15

...and Jerry’s mom says:

“I get to see him laugh more. We don’t worry as much”
