At the Rhode Island Office of Healthy Aging (OHA), our mission is to empower people to age strong. Our work is centered in providing information and resources that promote agency and equity, and it's grounded in the belief that people's needs and preferences are diverse and multi-dimensional as they age—and should always inform how we serve.

Rhode Island is growing older. Today, we are among the U.S. states with the highest share of adults age 85 and over, and by 2040, one in four residents will be an older adult. At the same time, there are more than 130,000 care partners in our state, supporting their loved ones in aging with dignity and purpose; this number will only continue to swell. At some point in our lives, most—if not all—of us will find ourselves at one, or both, ends of this care spectrum.

OHA is proud to be a founding member and funder of the Family Caregiver Alliance of Rhode Island—a group dedicated to supporting care partners and their families in our state. We are equally proud to present the inaugural Rhode Island State Plan on Caregiving, which will serve as a valuable tool in our continued work to shape policy and programs that benefit older adults and care partners.

We are building on a strong foundation: one that considers families holistically, as well as the evolving landscape. Rhode Island's respite services are nationally recognized and support caregivers across the lifespan, including an increasing number of grandparents who are raising grandchildren. Despite a global pandemic raging around us, we've continued to deliver high-quality programs and offer virtual workshops to families to help them navigate what is often a challenging—albeit rewarding—caregiver role.

The COVID-19 crisis has disproportionately impacted our elders and placed considerable strain on caregivers. It has also highlighted the deep and historic inequities that plague our state. The data is clear: where you live and your access to resources have a very real effect on your health and quality of life.

We must commit ourselves to creating meaningful opportunities for communities with concentrated disadvantage and to increasing the cultural relevancy of our programs and services.

Thank you to everyone who contributed to Rhode Island's first State Plan on Caregiving. We appreciate your partnership and look forward to all we will do together to support care partners. And most importantly, thank you to the many caregivers across Rhode Island for your selfless acts of love and generosity.

Welcome to the first Rhode Island State Plan for Family Caregivers. The Family Caregiver Alliance of Rhode Island (FCARI) is proud to work with community partners to improve the access of family caregivers to services across Rhode Island. The following plan will serve as a guide for goals and strategies to strengthen partnership, organizational operations and program offerings for each of Rhode Island's caregivers.

In July of 2017, the Family Caregiver Alliance of Rhode Island became incorporated and obtained 501(c)(3) status as a subsidiary under the United Way of Rhode Island (UWRI), the State's lead partner and operator of the Point. FCARI maintains its independence from UWRI, but utilizes the benefits of non-profit status through UWRI.

With our partners, FCARI has become an advocate for caregiving across the lifespan throughout Rhode Island. Although we have accomplished so much, a large percent of our family caregivers still do not receive the assistance they might need and qualify for within our current framework. FCARI and our community partners see this as an area we can work upon, to improve connection and access to services and resources.

The Family Caregiver Alliance of Rhode Island, in partnership with the Office of Healthy Aging, hopes to bridge this gap with our groundbreaking 2020 RI State Plan for Family Caregivers. Our State Plan aims to expand and implement various programs and partnerships to strengthen FCARI leadership, and ensure that we can secure future funding for programs that will help our caregivers.

Through 2023, FCARI and our partners will continue to ensure our work is responsive to Rhode Islander's by being supportive and present in the community, educating ourselves regarding issues caregivers are grappling with, and most importantly, ensuring equitable access to resources and advocacy for all of our caregivers.

— Family Caregiver Alliance of Rhode Island Mission Statement

The Lifespan Respite Care Program was first authorized by Congress in 2006 under Title XXIX of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C 201). Lifespan Respite Care programs are coordinated systems of accessible, community-based respite care services for family caregivers of children and adults of all ages with special needs.

Championed by Rhode Island's own Congressman James Langevin, Rhode Island was one of the first states to receive funding under this Title. Included in the 2006 provisions for funding was the existence in each state of a Caregiver Alliance, serving as a voice for caregivers across the lifespan.

Today's Family Caregiver Alliance of Rhode Island (FCARI) is the result of these earlier efforts. A component of United Way of Rhode Island, FCARI operates as its own entity while benefiting from the extensive umbrella of the United Way, which is also Rhode Island's home to 211 and Point.

This State Plan to Support Family Caregivers is yet another first for Rhode Island. The development of this plan was proposed under the Lifespan Respite Program operated by the State Office of Healthy Aging. It will be the first of its kind in the United States.

This plan is a beginning effort to provide a laser focus on the needs of caregivers caring for Rhode Islanders of any age. This plan will begin in July of 2021 and end in September 2023, coinciding with the State Plan on Aging, the broader document which provides a blueprint for the Office of Healthy Aging.

Included in this plan you will find information about Rhode Island's caregivers, the state's current efforts to support and serve them and goals and objectives to move us forward in this mission.

By 2023 this plan projects:

An Alliance with a stronger voice for all Rhode Island caregivers

An Alliance with a more robust website and an enhanced social media presence

An Alliance with a much-expanded organization included a focus on diversity, equity and inclusion

An Alliance with a much greater role in supporting the broader State efforts of Caregiver Assessment, Person Centered Options Counseling and No Wrong Door access to long term services and supports.

Special thanks to the many partners and caregivers who provided input to this plan and who will continue to play an important role in achieving these goals.

Many caregivers do not currently qualify for respite services through state programs. Outdated income guidelines do not reflect the current cost of living. This needs to change.

According to the 2020 AARP Caregiving in the US Report, “the number of Americans providing care has increased in the past five years,”² —and Rhode Island is no exception. More and more Rhode Islanders will find themselves providing care for their loved ones in the coming years, and 24% or more of those individuals will be providing care for one or more persons.²

Women provide 61% of unpaid care in the US, when comparably men in 2020 provide the remaining 39%.² These trends, although studied in RI’s aging population and the US caregiver population, may also be used to predict challenges our caregivers are facing, and how we may address them.

It is estimated that 136,000¹⁴ Rhode Islanders care for a family member or friend on a regular basis. The financial and physical toll sustained caregiving takes on the caregiver is well documented.

In spite of these large numbers of Rhode Island caregivers, the number who access and utilize support services is low. The CareBreaks program provides respite breaks to 355¹⁵ families in an average year.

The TDI program for caregivers was utilized by 51,534 during the 2020 calendar year.¹⁶ Of the 51,534 initial TDI applications filed 2020, 16,139 (31.3%) were Temporary Caregiver Insurance Benefits (TCI).⁷

Only a few hundred of Rhode Island’s caregivers have taken advantage of the Powerful Tools for Caregivers, a free 6-week course designed to strengthen caregiver skills.

This State Plan for Family Caregivers seeks to advocate for expanded resources to support caregivers. But just as important, will be the efforts to get the word out—to individuals who do not identify as caregivers, those who are unaware of resources, and those who do not know they are eligible for assistance.

“There are an estimated 53 million family caregivers in the country, and respite care continues to be one of their most frequently reported unmet needs.”

Congressman James Langevin

No matter how successful, all programs and services must grow and adapt to changing circumstances. Rhode Island is fortunate to have a solid foundation of programs and services in place on which to continue to build a more comprehensive network for family caregivers across the Lifespan. While this State Plan for Family Caregivers is not a resource document, we have provided a brief review of current components to the network of support for family caregivers. For a list of programs and contact information for each, please visit fcari.org.

ACCESS — FINDING THE WAY

Getting started as a caregiver sometimes comes as a surprise. You start off by helping a little, then a little more, and then you are it — the primary caregiver. In Rhode Island the following programs and services can help link caregivers to services and supports.

211

In July 2000, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) reserved the 211-dialing code for community information and referral services. By simply dialing 211, those in need of assistance can be referred, and sometimes connected, to appropriate agencies and community organizations. Dialing 211 helps direct callers to services for, among others, the elderly, the disabled, those who do not speak English, and those with a personal crisis.

POINT | 401-462-4444

Rhode Island's free healthy aging helpdesk at (401) 462-4444. Available — 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year. You will speak with a trained specialist. And your call will be completely confidential.

RIPIN | CALL CENTER 401-270-0101

RIPIN is a nonprofit organization established in 1991 by a group of parents of children with special needs. These parents recognized that together they could provide support through sharing essential information and helping to find the resources they needed for their loved ones. This peer model continues to be at the heart of RIPIN and their expansion statewide.

Today RIPIN employees over 100 folks, most of whom have personal experience caring for a loved one with special health care or educational needs.

The RIPIN Call Center offers free support to any Rhode Islander who needs help accessing healthcare, health insurance, or special education for children with disabilities.

ELDERCARE LOCATOR | 1-800-677-1116

The Eldercare Locator is the first step to finding resources for older adults in any U.S. community. It is a free national service of the Administration for Community Living that provides an instant connection to resources that enable older persons to live independently in their communities and offers support for caregivers. The Eldercare Locator is administered by The National Association of Area Agencies on Aging. This is a good resource for family members caring long distance (in a state other than Rhode Island).

SERVICE — GETTING THE JOB DONE

The tasks involved in caregiving may seem overwhelming. From driving folks to appointments, paying bills and cooking to bathing, toileting and feeding, each caregiver's tasks are as unique as the loved one for whom they care.

Asking for help is not a sign of weakness but an awareness that it is sometimes impossible, and most times unhealthy, to try to do it all yourself. Programs such as the ones listed below can help. Some care recipients will meet criteria that helps them pay for this care.

Most others will be private pay — paying for the services based on the provider’s fee schedule. All can help the caregiver do the best possible job.

HOME AND COMMUNITY BASED SERVICES

These programs provide help in the home enabling care recipients to keep living in the community. For some folks who meet eligibility requirements there are programs that help pay for these services. A small number of caregivers may be able to get paid for the care they provide. And finally, for many other folks Home and Community Based Services are private pay.

ADULT DAY HEALTH CENTERS

Adult day health centers offer programming for people with care needs during the day. Services are tailored to the individual and may include therapeutic activities, transportation, meals, and personal care. The programs can help give a break to a round-the-clock caregiver.

CARE RECIPIENT SPECIFIC ASSISTANCE

Many organizations exist to help caregivers who care for someone with a specific diagnosis or disability. For example, the Rhode Island Chapter of the Alzheimer’s Association, the Rhode Island Traumatic Brain Injury Association, and the Autism Association of Rhode Island, to name a few. Some organizations are available to help care recipients who meet certain criteria, like services available for veterans.

For more information on a broad range of Home and Community Based Programs or to apply for assistance contact Point at 401-462-4444.

SUPPORT FOR THE CAREGIVER

Caregiving is an extraordinary gift that often takes a financial, physical and/or emotional toll on the caregiver. The following programs and services, available now to caregivers in Rhode Island, provide assistance and support.

CASE MANAGEMENT

Case management connects a caregiver or care recipient to a trained professional who can help apply for home care services. Case managers can assess a client’s (care recipient) health and human service needs. Case managers assist in planning care, putting care in place, coordinating services, and helping to evaluate options. Case Managers can help a caregiver in doing their very important work.

For some services and programs case management is provided. State funded Home and Community based services usually include case management. Case management may also be provided for some private pay in home services.

RESPITE CARE — CAREBREAKS 401-421-7833 EXT. 212

The CareBreaks program provides assistance in finding and paying for someone to step in and fill the caregiver’s shoes, either on a one time or regular basis. Respite allows the caregiver to take a break, run errands, attend to his/her own personal needs.

RESPITE PROGRAM FOR FAMILIES WITH CHILDREN | (401) 270-0101

Rhode Island offers respite care to parents with special needs children. Eligibility requirements must be met. This program offers a break to the parent/guardian caregiver; time to attend to their own needs or just enjoy dinner and a movie.

POWERFUL TOOLS FOR CAREGIVERS 401-432-7217

Powerful Tools is a nationally recognized program that teaches caregivers the skills they need to keep themselves healthy while providing excellent care for their loved ones. The program is offered in six segments and is free to the caregivers who attend.

Other training and education opportunities are offered in Rhode Island for caregivers. Many are specific to the diagnosis of the care recipient. For example the Rhode Island Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association provides a variety of early diagnosis workshops and support groups that provide great benefit to caregivers.

FAMILY MEDICAL LEAVE ACT DLT.RI.GOV

The Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) is a labor law requiring employers of a certain size to provide employees unpaid time off for serious family health issues or situations. Qualified reasons may include adoption, pregnancy, foster care placement, family or personal illness, or military leave.

FMLA is designed to help employees balance their work and family responsibilities by allowing them to take reasonable unpaid leave.

TCI TEMPORARY CAREGIVER INSURANCE RIPAIDLEAVE.NET

TCI is a benefit available to Rhode Island caregivers who are employed. This program offers up to four weeks of partial wage replacement benefits to workers who need time off from work for:

Care of a seriously ill child, spouse, domestic partner, parent, parent-in-law or grandparent

Bonding with a newborn child, adopted child or foster child.

The Guide for Caregivers and Point are excellent starting points for finding resources to help with caregiving.

To access the guide, visit eohhs.ri.gov/consumer/elders and click on the Caregiver Guide under resources.

Point, Rhode Island's free healthy aging helpdesk, offers confidential and multilingual assistance 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year. (401) 462-4444.

Who Is A Caregiver?

“Caregivers provide regular care or assistance to a friend or family member with a health problem or disability.”¹ This may also include individuals who require care due to a mental health diagnosis. A family caregiver is often times unpaid, and provides the majority of care for their loved-one at home.

Different Types Of Family Caregivers

Whether you’re taking care of an aging parent, a disabled spouse, or looking after a child with a physical or mental illness, providing care for a family member in need is an act of kindness, love, and loyalty. Caregiving may look like:

- Caring for aging parents or loved-ones

- Caring for children with a physical or mental health disability

- Caring for adults with a physical or mental health disability

- Sandwich Caregivers: caring for both children and adults simultaneously

- Kinship Caregivers: caring full-time for children within the extended family/friend network, who cannot live safely at home

WHAT IS IT?

“Caregiver strain and burden encompasses the difficulties assuming and functioning in the caregiver role as well as associated alterations in the caregiver’s emotional and physical health that can occur when care demands exceed resources.”⁶

HOW DOES IT AFFECT FAMILY CAREGIVERS?

“Nearly one in five caregivers report high physical and emotional strain as a result of their caregiving duties.”⁷

Over the past decade the RI legislature has been responsive to advocates working to improve and expand supports for family caregivers. Below is a list of these important laws. It would be prudent to review these laws to determine how they are being implemented, if adequate resources are available to put them into practice, and the need for any changes or refinements to the law. It would also be important to review legislation that has been submitted in the state legislature and not passed as well as laws and policies in other states to determine their relevancy for supporting Rhode Island family caregivers.
